Solicitor General's Office Moves Into New Space

The Solicitor General's office is excited to move to a new office space this month. The Solicitor General's Office is responsible for prosecuting misdemeanor crimes for Baldwin County. As Solicitor General, J. Skye Gess works with victims of domestic violence and youthful offenders. Often, this is the first time someone, victim or defendant, interacts with the criminal justice system.

Designing the new space was a team effort and everyone in the office provided valuable input on what would best serve the Baldwin County community. When designing the new office space, Solicitor General Gess wanted to create a professional environment that was warm and welcoming. "Our office interacts with members of the community on a daily basis and I felt it was important to create a space where someone would feel comfortable talking to our advocates, attorneys, and staff members," noted Gess. One important addition to the office is the victim interview room and children's area. It was important to incorporate this new space to help victims of domestic violence and other crimes feel safe and relaxed. The office also now has a special waiting area for children who may come to the office.
