Fire Captain Bradley Towe Recognized as Fire Investigator of the Year

The Georgia Arson Control Board has formally recognized Baldwin County Fire Rescue Captain Bradley Towe as the 2023 Georgia Arson Control Fire Investigator of the Year. In this past year Captain Towe has put in countless hours investigating fires that have led to seven arson arrests. Since becoming the Baldwin County Fire Investigator, he has had a 100% conviction record. While maintaining a high case load, he also finds the time to assist other fire departments when requested. Captain Towe is actively involved with the Georgia Public Safety Training Center where he is an adjunct instructor for Fire Investigator training classes.

He is a very professional and a highly competent investigator, leaving no stone unturned. Captain Towe's tenacity in the pursuit of arson has no bounds, which is directly reflected by his arrest record. Captain Towe's successes as Fire Investigator have even been recognized by local media, when he made news and history by recently having three separate arson cases heard by the same Grand Jury.

Captain Towe excels at his role of Fire Investigator as well as Training Captain for his department. He was responsible for the training of 15 recruit firefighters this past year, all while attending training to maintain his own Firefighter, Peace Officer, Fire Investigator, and HazMat Tech certifications. Captain Towe's dedication, passion and professionalism make him Georgia Arson Control's choice for Fire Investigator of the year. He is truly making Baldwin County and Georgia a safer place to live.
