Baldwin County Commission and City of Milledgeville Encourage Citizens to Commit to the Georgia Safety Promise Campaign

MILLEDGEVILLE, GA – The governments of Baldwin County and the City of Milledgeville have jointly committed to the Georgia Safety Promise Campaign from the Governor’s Office and the Georgia Department of Health. This is a statewide campaign that encourages businesses and the public to agree to simple, but critical measures that will keep Georgians safe from COVID-19, minimize spread of the virus, and keep Georgia open for business.

Both county and city leaders urge all Baldwin County residents to commit as well and work together to keep the community a safe place to live and work. By committing to the Georgia Safety Promise, residents and businesses are making the decision to take vital steps to keep themselves safe and protect others during the COVID-19 pandemic. This campaign urges the public to abide by the following guidelines when in public spaces:

- Keep social distance
- Wear a face covering
- Wash and sanitize hands

The guidelines above were created and formulated by the Georgia Department of Public Health. The Georgia Safety Promise campaign is designed to not only preserve Georgia as a safe and healthy place to live for all Georgians, but to also keep Georgia’s economy open for business.
